

More Maryland residents using expanded Medicaid services than expected

Friday, 03 July 2009

People who live in Maryland are using expanded Medicaid services in greater numbers than expected—according to the State Health Department. More than 44,000 additional state residents have enrolled as of this week, exceeding estimates that another 26,000 would enroll after income limits were relaxed.

.